THE WEEKLY NEWS is the cheapest paper published in North Carolina. It is only one dollar per year, postage paid, contains 52 columns of plain printed news from every section of the country, and important advertisements. Always Cash.

BECAUSE Gen. Grant was shut up in a room for an hour with O'Leary, the Chief of the Utes, and came out with a whole scalp, the Chicago Times is moved to exclaim, O'Leary!

The Cincinnati Enquirer of Monday says: "The political complexion of the Ohio Senate is reported to be dependent upon the election or defeat of John E. Bell, in this county. In view of all the Republican frauds perpetrated in this county it is due the honor of the county and the State to disclose at least enough of them to give Mr. Bell a seat in the Senate."

The Republican papers of North Carolina, so says the National Republican, are merry over the defeat of Allen in Ohio. The time will come and is not far off, when the Republicans of this State will rue the day when they ever applauded the course of the so-called Republican party north. That party is ruled by the hard money interest, and means oppression, and so will that party find it.

The Radical party held on to the idea of consistency in their demands for an early adjournment of the Convention. If they had had a majority, possibly they might have carried their plan out. We doubt it. But when the Democrats were found to be in a majority, opposition to measures of reform was mere factionalism. That party came here with a purpose, and they had it in their power to carry it through. Every obstacle, therefore, thereafter presented by the minority was intended to delay business, to prolong the session and to throw the weight of that responsibility on the majority. The public will see through the game.

The amendments will be approved, and the people will attach the proper responsibility to the side of the House that burdened their passage.

CROSS MARKS.

The paper published here anonymously in the interest of the Republican party under the name of the Era, is in the main fair and well conducted. We pay less attention to it than if it came out under avowed authenticity. We were struck by a recent article in it attempting to prove that Elder Hassell was counted in as a delegate from Martin by fraud, and the regular exhibit is made in the document claiming to be the authentic exhibit of the sentiments of the protestants, that with one single exception, all the signers were designated by a cross mark. Even the affiant, Riley Williams, presents his signature to the world with an X. What value can be attached to such testimony? Cross marks make no sign.

COTTON SALES.

On Wednesday there were sold in Raleigh 573 bales. On Thursday the amount offered was possibly somewhat smaller. But the fact is prominent that this city looks up as a champion for a great interior business. It already exists, and it is growing. It is a curious illustration of the expansibility and flexibility of North Carolina industries, that the State comes into competition with all the productions of the entire Union. She is at once a large cotton region, the first of all tobacco sections, a great wheat and corn growing area, the very paradise of the fruit and grape culture, and in all, only what the energies of her citizens may choose to make her.

Let the cry of carpet-bagger, sounded by the Republican party over Gov. Allen, ring. North Carolina has given to almost every State in the Union something of its talent. It gave to New York Frelinghuysen; it gave to Pennsylvania Stanton; it gave to Ohio Allen; it gave to Missouri Benton; it has given to all the States in the South and West what has made them proud and rich in intellectual wealth. Our State is proud of its contributions in this regard. We give such carpet-baggerism, and we accept such; all we object to is that class who came into North Carolina with one shirt, and with a determination to fleece and plunder, and then escape with their spoils. General settlers and harmonious citizens are always welcome, and such we presume to be Gov. Allen in Ohio.

THE GREAT STAPLE.

Looking out of our windows at the wonderful activity in the cotton market, we are more than ever impressed with its weight in the business of the world. Here in a small interior city of North Carolina every eye is brightened and every energy stimulated by the return of the season when the crop comes upon the market. Every industry is enlivened. Merchants are excited in the street, clerks clamor and are overworked, and weighers and draymen are overrun, and noisy.

This is an epitome of the life of the South at present. In all the towns the same scene is going on with different degrees of magnitude. The importance then of the cotton crop to the prosperity of the nation is not exaggerated. Cotton is yet King.

But the farmer is learning the fact that a king is not allowed to be a despot, and that to reign, he must rule under constitutional limitations. Consequently they are bringing King Cotton under control, and making him somewhat subsidiary to other interests. Let this idea be kept in view, and the South will flourish.

PENNSYLVANIA.

The New York Sun says the Ohio election appears to have exerted little or no influence in Pennsylvania, where the canvass of both parties is on a widely different footing. While on the question of currency expansion or contraction the two platforms are very much the same, there is a shade of difference to the credit of Erie; and the Democratic leaders, including their candidate for Governor, are historically the hardest of hard-money men, and the Republican leaders the reverse. Senator Cameron owned the Lancaster Convention, whether because he made it or because he bought it we do not pretend to say; but he owned it, and ran it, and dictated its platform and candidates, and he manages the campaign. It is needless to say that he is one of the raggedest rag-money men that ever held a seat in Congress.

Inflation and contraction have no proper place in the Pennsylvania canvass. The real issue there is far more important than any temporary question as to the addition or subtraction of a few millions of paper money. It is whether the people shall have any money at all which may not be taxed out of their pockets to swell the spoils of thieves in office; whether government shall be maintained to protect the governed, or simply to pilage them. The coming election in Pennsylvania will determine whether that particular State will suffer itself to be further debauched and plundered by the Treasury Ring, and whether the nation is to remain a prey to the greater Ring, of which Grant is the head.

MR. DELANO'S SUCCESSOR.

The Baltimore Gazette says that in his appointment of a new Secretary of the Interior we have President Grant at his worst again, and that is very bad indeed. It was to be expected that the man who dug out of obscurity Richardson, and Robeson, and Borie, and Belknap was possessed of infinite resources for disappointing the people whose servant he is, and he has given us a fresh illustration of his fertility in expedients in his last invention. Had he searched the country over a man could not be found whom the 'dirty mumble of Columbus Delano would better fit than Zachariah Chandler, or one who would be a more fit companion and adviser for the third-term aspirant. A Republican of the Morton school, Mr. Chandler is about as good a specimen of the decadent political hack of that class as could be found. Ignorant, bigoted, vindictive, vulgar, foul-mouthed and unscrupulous, he was the chosen leader of the party of hate from its birth until, in a fit of respectability, it turned and smote him. Tried and condemned even by his own party in his own State, and forced to refuge to private life, this man has been trusted to one of the most important trusts of Government, to a position for which he is utterly unfit and unworthy. In thus selecting for his adviser a man rejected of his own party, the President has heaped an insult upon the Republican party which, if it possesses any independence, it will promptly resent, though it is not probable a Republican Senate will have the courage to rebuke him by refusing to confirm his selection. Whatever qualities Mr. Chandler may lack, however, it can at least be said of him that he is no worse than Delano. He is not personally dishonest, and Mr. Delano is. As for the rest, he is very rich, and will not care to steal, which is a point in his favor. Whether he will pack his department with friends who will, is a subject for grave doubt. Then, too, he is of decidedly and notoriously convivial habits, which, in the President's eye, is certainly a very strong point. But take him for all in all, that such a man should be called to such a place, and that a President should be found to lean upon the counsels of this repudiated and broken down party hack, afford melancholy evidence of the political degeneracy of the Nation.

The Opelika (Ala.) Times is not at all daunted by the late defeat of Gov. Allen in Ohio. It still speaks of him in connection with the Presidency.

"Gov. Allen is too deeply enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen to remain in retirement, and, like Cincinnati of old, he will be called on next year to leave the plow and preside over the destinies of a great people, who are determined to be free; we then throw our flag to the breeze, with Gov. William Allen, of Ohio, for President, and William W. Eaton, of Connecticut, for Vice-President. This ticket will sweep the country like a prairie fire, from Aristotle to the Rio Grande, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Then we say roll on the ball for Allen and Eaton."

The Fall River Strike and its National Effects.

Many of the Fall River strikers find themselves in a very embarrassing position as the winter approaches. Most of them were allowed to resume work on signing the conditions imposed by the mill owners, but many who held out, waiting for better terms found their places already supplied when they finally concluded to surrender. There was still another class, composed of the instigators of the strike, whom the owners would not admit on any terms. Whether justified or not, the strike has entailed great suffering on 15,000 operatives, and even those who have been re-admitted will experience its ill effects for a long time to come. The cotton mill interest at Fall River is of exceptional importance, since two-thirds of the print cloth manufactured in the United States is produced there. The annual production of the United States is 588,000,000 yards. Of this amount 481,000,000 yards are manufactured in New England, the Fall River mills alone producing 331,875,000 yards. Mr. Charles Northcott in a letter reviewing the situation gives it as his opinion that there is at present an over production of cotton goods, and answers the question as to why the mills do not stop work if this be so, by giving as the reason that the manufacturers are not so much worried by their machinery to stand idle. The machinery deteriorates if not used, and even when a mill has stopped it must be kept heated to prevent the former from rusting. The expensiveness must also be kept in mind. Then there is the loss of interest on the investment. The labor costs only about one-third of the product, and the sacrifice made in running is not so much as the labor cost half or two-thirds of the cost. Finally the hope of better times induces the owner to go ahead. The wages at present paid the employees at Fall River is equal to that now paid the operatives in similar mills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Miss Fanny Davenport has been talking to a London editor about the drama she is about to produce, and for success wholly upon skill and taste in dressing, although she added that an accessory, and added: "It must be a religion. I think I am a thoroughly good dressmaker has been already admitted, and now I am desirous of securing some higher recognition of qualifications which I think I possess, and which I believe to be of higher and worthier."

The marriage of Mr. William C. Seddon, son of ex-Secretary of War Seddon, of the Southern Confederacy, to Miss Kate L. Slawson, daughter of Mr. J. B. Slawson, president of the cotton trade, occurred last Wednesday, at the residence of the bride's family, 16 West Forty-sixth street, New York. Bishop Bissell, of Vermont, performed the ceremony at eleven minutes past nine p. m. The day was the twenty-ninth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Slawson, who were united in wedlock by the bishop.

The Claiborne and Canal street Railroad of New Orleans, recently sold to the Shakspeare foundry $2,500 worth of counterfeit nickels collected by them in the last two years. It took five dollars and forty cents to buy the five dollars and twenty cents worth of nickels to make a pound of lead, and the nickels were sold to the foundry for melting at sixteen cents per pound.

Sheep raising has paid better in Walla-Walla and Umatilla counties, Oregon, than in any other enterprise. There are now over 200,000 head of sheep grazing there, worth from $2.50 to $3 per head.

The Prince of Wales regards the trip to India in the light of a big spree. Rome, Athens and Alexandria in Egypt are to be his way stations for refreshment.

Bets are running quite heavy on the assassination of the Prince of Wales while in India.

The Wealth of the Black Hills.

The Black Hills expedition has returned to Cheyenne after spending five months in the regions of the Black Hills. It has been a successful one in every respect, and it is evident that the claimed bonanza must of necessity become the property of the white man. It is reported that gold is to be found in quantities that may run from $3 to $5 per acre, and that the water resources are ample and inexhaustible, which facts prove most conclusively that the Sioux must part with their Hills, for when a country has an immense floating population which is restlessly seeking out new fields of enterprise and labor, it is simply useless to tell them that there is hidden wealth in their lands for ages undisturbed, and the sooner the Government secures this self-reliant better it will be for the country, and for the thousands who would be simply contractors and not producers for some time to come.—Washington Republican.

On Monday of last week a stranger registered at the Nelson House on Broadway, N. Y., as "J. Fuller, Elmira." He took a room and remained in it all Tuesday night and all day Wednesday. Thursday he paid his bill and went to the Union House, where he remained as "J. Fuller, Elmira." Nothing singular was noticed regarding his conduct. He drank moderately, and did not exhibit much money. Friday morning he was standing in the office of the Union House, when suddenly he fell to the floor and died instantly.
